

SOCIETY and PERSONAL ACTIVITIES of WOMEN

Society

One of the most delightful affairs of the many which have been given for this week was the bridge party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Karl G. King, 515 W. Euclid av., at which time Mrs. King and Mrs. Harvey P. Rostler were the winners. A number of other ladies were placed on the porch, were filled with players, the favors being won by Mrs. John Greif, Mrs. Milo Miller, Mrs. L. W. McGinn and Mrs. George Harris. A favor for each table was presented to the highest score and the most favors were given to Mrs. M. McElwaine and Mrs. A. Jacobson, of California, Mrs. N. Joseph, of Ypsilanti and Mrs. E. H. Rohrer, of Topeka, Kan. The home was lovely with quantities of garden flowers. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Frank Whitcomb, Mrs. W. M. Warner, Mrs. William Kennedy, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Mortimer Reed and Miss Laura Harris.

As a courtesy to Mrs. Dalton Moomaw, Mrs. Edward Plant, 1725 S. Carroll st., was hostess at an informal afternoon party, Thursday. The favors at bridge were won by Mrs. Everett Calvert and Mrs. Theodore Koehler while at 500 the winners were Mrs. Clarence Thresh and Mrs. Elmer Equis. Following the game, a buffet luncheon was served from a table centered with a vase of spring flowers varied colored.

The Notre Dame Glee club will entertain with a formal dinner dance this evening at the Chain 'J' Lakes Country club in honor of Prof. and Mrs. John Becker. The Glee club orchestra will play for dancing following the dinner.

Mrs. W. R. Hinkle, 1135 Portage av., assisted by Mrs. J. I. Ginty, Mrs. F. S. Fisher and Mrs. J. M. Hively entertained the Ladies Aid society of the Broadway Evangelical church Thursday afternoon. The program consisted of a piano number by Birgit Ginty and vocal selections by Miss Glendora Judson. Mrs. William Gosel gave an interesting talk on the activities of the society in raising the $2000 church debt which has just been paid. The society raised the money in three years instead of the five years which had been given to accomplish the purpose. During the social hour, light refreshments were served to 25 guests. The next meeting which will be held the first Thursday of July will take place at the home of Mrs. Frank Soltz, 128 Haney av.

Mrs. A. A. Ackerman and Mrs. W. A. Weinberg entertained the members of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of Sunday School church Thursday afternoon at the church parlors. Fifteen members were present. A letter from a missionary in the Philippines was read by Mrs. Charles Decker and Mrs. J. C. Vermande read an article on the Philippines. Mrs. Maura Pommert had charge of the home topic. During the social hour, light refreshments were served by the hostesses. The next meeting will take place the second Thursday in July, the place to be announced later.

The Mount Pleasant Home club held an all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. John Staples, 1514 Lincoln way W. A potluck dinner was served at noon to 14 members and guests. The address of the afternoon was given by Miss Jane Hurford, executive of the St. Joseph County Anti-Tuberculosis league.

Family night will be observed July 13 at the home of Mrs. John Hill, Lincoln way W.

The Beehive club, 809 1/2 S. Michigan st., entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Salton. Twelve members were present. In the contests the favors were won by Mrs. John Galvin, Mrs. Lottie O'Dell, Mrs. A. Nelson and Mrs. William Brown. Light refreshments were served. In two weeks next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Frank Batson, 460 Haney av.

The Pollyanna circle of the Trinity M. E. church met Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Pauline Treesh, 722 Lawndale av., with 11 members present. A feature of the evening was a miscellaneous show for Miss Dorothy Balkins, a bride of this month. The contest favors were won by Miss Esther Kirkpatrick and Miss Balkins.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Frank William Brobeck, 1620 S. Michigan st., for the marriage of their daughter Miss Gertrude Ann Brobeck and E. R. McEndarfer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McEndarfer, 1514 S. Michigan st., which will take place in the afternoon of June 21, at 4 o'clock, at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church. The members of the wedding party will include Miss Gertrude, Miss Ruth Staples and Miss Mildred Rennoe, the last two young women being school mates of Miss Brobeck, at Milwaukee Downer College. Frank Brobeck, Jr., will serve as groomsmen and the ushers include Forest G. Hays and Harold C. Bourne. A reception at the residence will follow the ceremony.

The final meeting of the season of the Wednesday club was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George B. Belter, 1833 Portage av. Luncheon was served on the porch at 1 o'clock to 16 members. Roses and peonies were effectively used for decorating the home. Following luncheon the annual election was held resulting in Mrs. Belter being chosen president, Mrs. Walter Derr, vice president and Mrs. Robert Milton, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Belter presented the topic of the afternoon on "American Landscape Gardening."

Invitation have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kuss, 1215 S. Michigan st., for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Mildred Kuss and Forest Glenn Hay, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Hay, 1303 S. Michigan st., which will take place in the evening of June 14 at 8 o'clock at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church. A small reception will follow at the Kuss home.

Revelations of A Wife

THE WISH LILLIAN VOICED. Elizabeth Harrison did not fulfill her threat to leave her home immediately because of her mother's ultimatum to her concerning her punishment methods. Instead, her mother Graham's command to tie down in her own room, remaining there invisible to everybody save her mother and Mary, for two days. Mary, with unfailing cheerfulness, trudged up and downstairs, carrying her mother's food trays, and waiting upon her other whims. Of course, this performance put more household work upon the shoulders of Mother Graham, Lillian and me, but from the fact that my martinet mother-in-law did not compel her daughter to get up and take her share of the household burdens, I argued that the sudden tumbling of Mrs. Harrison's house of cards about her ears had affected her nerves more or less seriously.

For myself, I would willingly have worked three times as hard for the privilege of having her invisible. I always had disliked Elizabeth, but the incident of the necktie intensified my feeling to positive loathing, and I was glad, indeed, when at the end of her two days' seclusion, she departed, with children and baggage, for her own home.

"Not About Him." When Elizabeth had gone, everything in our horizons, mental and physical, seemed to settle down to a monotonous tranquility most refreshing after the strenuous days following our home-coming from the mountains. Lillian's mind was at ease, temporarily, at least, about the man in the hospital, whose mysterious persecution of Katie had caused so much trouble. Dr. Pettit gave her a dandy report upon his condition, which varied from the first day when he was pronounced "barely breathing, and unconscious" to the tenth, when the physician said cautiously that "it now seems as if the miracle of ultimate recovery might be looked for."

"Has he talked?" Lillian demanded sharply. "No, he is too weak to do more than whisper a request for a drink of water or to answer some necessary question from the nurse."

Dr. Pettit hesitated perceptibly at the end of his answer, and looked at Lillian doubtfully. "But I think he is worrying vaguely about something," he said. "And that worry will no doubt find expression sooner or later."

"I know," Lillian returned, cupped her chin in her hands for a few seconds, then, asked briskly: "Have there been any inquiries concerning him at the hospital today?"

She had asked the same question every day that Dr. Pettit had reported to her, and he had given her the same answer, a laconic "No." But today he added a cryptic, "Not about him," stressing the pronoun ever so slightly.

"What do you mean?" Her tone was tense, alert, and I knew that she sensed danger in his answer. "Just read this letter."

"There was a report asked for today," the physician said slowly, "of all mortality and accidental injury cases occurring in the hospital during the last month. Of course, that covers a much longer time than the duration of this man's injuries, but—"

"Where did it come from?" Lillian demanded, and there was that in her inflection which told me how intense she was of the physician's ponderous periods.

"It apparently was a simple request from the police department of New York City," Dr. Pettit answered. "Of course," Lillian retorted. "That's an old and effective dodge. It was answered, I suppose."

"It had to be," the physician returned. "There's one thing certain," Lillian said decidedly, "and this is that I've got to plan some way to keep track of that fellow when he gets out of the hospital. How long can you exercise your authority to keep him absolutely incommunicado?"

"Without any stretching of the truth, I can forbid any one save his nurse speaking to him for two weeks to come. Any physician would bear me out in this action."

"Good," Lillian rose, and Dr. Pettit answered.

held on Friday, June 16, at 8 p. m., in the High School auditorium. Mr. Greggerson comes to this city very highly recommended as a speaker with a real personality, thoroughly capable of delivering the Chiropactic message. The object of this lecture is educational, to give to the public in general a thorough explanation of the science of Chiropactic, along with the latest developments. This lecture will be free to all who wish to attend.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

Now that vitamins and complex fill a woman's life, she wonders how she ever managed to exist, when she had nothing but babies, love and purring to think about.

Jerry Tiger with the mail was a welcome diversion, but as I sorted the letters, I pounced upon one addressed in a familiar chiropactic with a feeling that there was something almost uncanny upon receiving it on this particular day. When I had read it, I dashed upstairs to Lillian's room and pounded frantically upon the door.

"Talk about the long arm of our old friend coincidence!" I exhaled when Lillian opened the door, arching her eyebrows in subtle disapproval of my haste. "Just read this letter from Katherine Bickett."

The most difficult thing about getting married is trying to think up some good excuse to give your friends for having "chosen" the particular man, who happened to ask you.

Many a girl permits a man to think that he is "entering" her, knowing that he will probably get so tangled up in the string that it will end in a marriage tie.

While a man is trying to think up something clever and sensible to say to a woman, she is usually wondering why he doesn't say something nice and foolish.

It may be sad to be married to a naval officer who is almost always away, but it is far sadder to be married to an author or to a painter, who is almost always at home.

Nowadays, a chivalrous dapper won't keep a sweet young college boy out so late that his mother will worry about him.

No peace conference will ever end the war of the sexes, so long as a man's desire is for conquest and personal glory and a woman's life-object is annexation.
